This was Louis's farewell to the old court, spoken on the front of the city of New York—in the name of the great East Side—hail and farewell!"

A rush was made by those there to get the pen that signed the last commitment. It was fitting that the last person sent to jail was a woman, a Bowery derelict, charged with drunkenness. Joe Levy got the pen and then kicked because it was not a gold mounted fo untain pen.

There was gloom in the old dusty building yesterday, gloom that overspread even the faces of the court attendants, who are new to the court and have not had much of a chance to get used and attached to it. The Essex Market Bar Association behaved like salesmen for a popular embalming fluid. Senator Willie Cheesecake, who has laid away $300 so that the poor in his neighborhood will get at least one good meal when he dies, looked as if he would like to order up the meal straightway.

Rosey did business in the old court when some of the Magistrates were appointed more for a political stroke than for their knowledge of law. This gave to the bench a sot of rough men, oftimes honest and sensible, perfectly fitted to deal out the common sense required to judge cases in Essex Market. Many is the brush that Rosey had when neither Magistrate ror lawyer had any law at their command, but had to depend on what they thought the common sense way to adjudge the case. Rosey never thought of consulting a law book. He tried to bring out the facts in the best light for his client and then get a favorable decision. Magistrates Mansfield, Osborn Schon B. Teddy suddenly tired of his fun and made tracks for the door, scattering a crowd of men, women and children who were watching his antics through the windows. He jogged down the street, passing Policeman Patrick Kealy, who was hurrying toward the butcher shop in response to cries for help, and disappeared into his master's saloon with his tail in full action.

Ruggieri made a formal demand on Esalaitis for the price of the steak and the mussed up meat, but the saloon keeper said that he hadn't ordered anything and he couldn't see why he should be called upon to settle.

The butcher said last night that Teddy had once before entered the shop and had helped himself to meat and he was getting tired of the darned dog's grafting.

It was a successful launching. Washington came George von L. Meyer, Secretary of the Navy; Assistant Secretary Beekman Winthrop, naval officers, members of the diplomatic corps, special envoys of foreign Governments, members of Congress and others.

Officials of many States and cities were there. Thousands armed with white tickets swarmed upon the long pier, and other thousands armed with the more valued red tickets filled the launching platform built around the bow of the huge hull.

Close to the bow, fifty feet above the ground, stood Miss Mary L. Macon, daughter of Representative Macon of Arkansas She was clad in white, with a white fur hat, boa and muff. From the high ceiling above her a rope was hung and from it was suspended the gayly decorated bottle of champagne. By her side stood her father, mother, Secretary Meyer and officials of the shipbuilding company, and about her was the launching party, among whom were Representative Will-

Lightly, silently, as though it weighed but a pound, the hull began to slide. It gained momentum as it went. It dipped into the water and pushed a large quantity of the Delgware River upon the shore of Pennsylvania, while 100 steamboats and tugs screeched a welcome Then a bunch of important little tugs surrounded her and hauled her into her dock, where she will rest until completed.

"The most successful launch I ever saw," said Secretary Meyer enthusiastically "And do you know that it is a record breaker? This is not only the biggest of American battleships but it has set a new time standard, being launched 60 per cent. completed in eleven days less than eleven months after the keel was laid. This speed puts the United States on a par with foreign shipyards, which have in the past been able to build ships much faster than we have."

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Most Desirable Merchandise Must Be Disposed of Prior to the Consolidation with GREENHUT & CO.

Not one price is given in this advertisement. Pages of space would be needed for the mere list. The FACT is that the price on EVERY article is "cut"—and "cut" DEEPLY. The situation of affairs is precisely THIS:

When the Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Co. opens its two mammoth buildings, a few weeks hence, the Greenhut building will be devoted EXCLUSIVELY to merchandise along comprehensive home-outfitting lines—that is, to Furniture, Carpets, Rugs, Linoleums, Oilcloths. China. Glassware, Lamps, Pictures, Upholsteries, and Kitchen Supplies Of Every Description.

And the entire tremendous area of the Siegel Cooper Co. building—to be known in future as the main building -will be devoted WHOLLY to dry goods, wearing apparel and food products.

Immediately after our present stocks of home-outfitting goods are disposed of in the Siegel Cooper Co. main building, these departments will not be continued in the Siegel Cooper Co. main building, but they will be reopened with newly bought merchandise and will be EXCLUSIVELY housed in the Greenhut building.

Therefore, instead of MOVING from this store to the Greenhut building the immense amount of merchandise comprised in the important departments above specified, we are going to SELL it, so that we may start the new departments, later, with entirely new stocks.

But how can it be done? There is only ONE way to dispose of so large an amount of goods quickly, and that is to name such PRICES that the PEOPLE will
